JOLIET, IL 60433

Join us to earn 3 CE credit hours and advance your practice!

3:30-4 p.m. Registration

4-5:30 p.m. "Ticks, Know Your Enemy: New Trends Impacting Your Patients"

5:30-6 p.m. Dinner/ISVMA Update

6-7:30 p.m. "Which Tick is Which"

In our first session, better understand the biology and life stages of ticks, identify the major species, learn tactics to prevent disease and limit exposure, and diagnose and treat common tick-borne diseases. In the second, learn more about diseases common to each tick and how to communicate the importance of external parasite prevention to pet owners.

Our Event Speaker: Dr. Debra Olbrich, DVM, MS

Dr. Olbrich is a senior professional services veterinarian with Merck Animal Health and covers both Illinois and Iowa. Prior to her role at Merck, she obtained her master's degree from Northern Illinois University which is where her interest in parasites first started. Her master's thesis focused on parasitoid wasps that she collected at her family's dairy farm. Following her studies at NIU, she obtained her veterinary medical degree from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Dr. Olbrich worked as a small animal veterinarian in a private practice located in Wilmette, IL prior to obtaining a role in industry. She holds an additional certification in Veterinary Medical Acupuncture.
